‘I have faith in infinite imaginations.’

Mason Stewart, a recluse, had lost the most cherished relationships in his life and had shut himself up from society at large. He leads a sedentary life without any surprises until his granddaughter Emily arrives at his doorstep without any notice. The intricate family drama unfolds with the inquisitive mind of Emily coming to terms with the wild chase of an illusive dream by her unwed mother, Sophia.

Will Sophia realize her illusive dreams? Will Emily’s desire for undiluted motherly affection find an expression? And will Mason be able to bring normalcy to his newly acquired unsettling relationships? Will they realise their age-old beliefs or succumb to change?

This short, intense drama overwhelms you and climaxes with its portrayal of the most sublime emotions and the darkest patches of human failings.

A must-read for all in today’s troubled times to reaffirm their belief in life and its value systems.

Mrinalini Mitra, a young adult, is a painter, poet, and pianist with multifarious talents. She has been recognised for her rhetorical abilities and views on contemporary issues. Her poignant depiction of human wants and failings transcend her art works and flow into her writings. Her paintings and poems depict depth and understanding of the complexities of emotions and relationships that belie her age. Belief is her debut novel.

- Experience the unfolding of an intricate family drama that builds up to an overwhelming climax.
- The novel is mesmerising in its portrayal of bold emotions and the depths of human feelings.
- It is a must-read for all in today’s troubled times.

‘Before you realise the complexities of the characters, the pace of the book overtakes you. The heartache is immense.’
